

About the Instructor

After a career in the international transportation field where he became familiar with international import/export regulations and customs policies procedures that took him across Canada and the northern United States, Neil joined the Canadian military (reserves) in the late 1980's where he first became involved in active criminal investigations and testified at courts martial proceedings, wetting his appetite for his future career in the professional investigative field.

After leaving the military in the early 1990's he completed the Canadian Investigative Academy training program and started his own successful P.I. business in Vancouver BC where he became proficient in insurance fraud investigations, criminal investigations, and became a director of the provincial P.I. Association.

During his time in Canada, Neil conducted a wide variety of investigations including criminal fraud, child custody, international theft, conspiracy to commit murder, and is one of few civilian investigators to obtain and execute civil search warrants (Anton Pillar Order) on suspect's businesses and personal residences. Neil also taught private investigation courses at Vancouver Community College for the accredited Focus Training Institute.

Since moving to Washington State, Neil established P.S.I. Investigations LLC where he focuses primarily on criminal defense and legal investigations and has provided expert investigative services through the courts for indigent defense cases. Neil has successfully investigated Murder, Homicide, Equivocal Death, Officer Involved Shooting, Sexual Assault, Rape (adult & child), Felony Assault, Drug Crimes, Racketeering/Influence/Corruption cases, Fraud, and much more.

Neil is also trained in Forensic Statement Analysis and is a DNA collection technician. He offers basic crime scene investigation, and testing services through an independent private laboratory in the U.S., and has an expert latent print examiner on staff for fingerprint work. Neil is also the current president of the Washington state professional investigators association (WALI), and is a frequent guest speaker at their annual conferences.

With the experience of over 3,000 completed criminal investigations to date, over his 20 plus year career, Neil currently focuses on criminal investigations and conducts training classes for private investigators in the areas of Criminal Defense Investigations, General Investigations, and Interviewing/Interrogation skills.

Neil is also a proud member/supporter of WALI, NCISS, WDA, WACDL, NACDL, ACFE, WCOG, and other professional associations.
